

Tribal Health Entities Eligible for $50B

A Generational Opportunity For Tribal Health

Awareness

We help you understand the federal Rural Health Transformation Program - what your state will fund and when - then help you create an application plan.

Program Design

When your state releases an RFP we help you propose responsive and culturally grounded programs.

Apply

We help you write a winning grant application by providing feedback and insight on how to align narratives, budgets, metrics.

Implement

If you're awarded a grant, we can act as your subcontractor to implement your program.

Sustain

We work with a mindset to invoke long-term transformation and sustainability of your tribal health programs.

Rural Health Transformation Program

RHTP represents one of the largest federal investments in rural healthcare in U.S. history. The initiative aims for sustainable, community-rooted systems that expand access, stabilize hospitals and clinics, strengthen workforce pipelines, and improve chronic disease and specialty care for rural populations, including Tribes.

- $50B total federal investment
- 5 year timeline
- $200M average funding for each state in 2026
- Requests For Proposals opening in early 2026

All awareness, program design, and application support is free. Our fee to implement is covered by your RHTP grant.

Learn more at our website:
TribalHealthTransformation.org

Tribal Health Transformation Partnership:

 TribalHealthTransformation.org

 Info@CayuseNS.com

 541-429-6983

Our innovative partnership is led by the Cayuse Holdings family of companies, a health and tech company owned by Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation.